

2017 Tennessee Forestry Camp

An introduction to the scientific, technical, and professional aspects of the forestry natural resource profession to Future Farmers of America high school students in Tennessee.

A Tradition of Collaboration

Since 1950, Tennessee Forestry Camp has been providing a wonderful opportunity for high school students affiliated with Future Farmers of America (FFA) to discover and enhance their environmental conservation knowledge, skills, and ethics through the leadership and instruction of camp counselors and forestry professionals.

The Tennessee Department of Agriculture Division of Forestry and the Tennessee Department of Education Career and Technical Education Division are avid supporters of Forestry Camp. They provide knowledgeable instructors with extensive forest management experience and develop leadership skills through the guidance of camp counselors, respectively. This support goes a long way in making camp fun and educational all while making it efficient to host camp at a reasonable fee. In addition to the State of Tennessee sponsors, the Tennessee Forestry Association and companies of the forest industry in the state contribute to the camp through donations and/or personnel.

Forestry

The core nature of camp is outdoor, hands-on instruction on the knowledge and responsibilities of the forestry profession. Courses are taught in the field by professional foresters and include: tree identification, measurements, compass and pacing, hardwood and pine silviculture, wildlife management, water quality protection, wildfire protection, insect and disease, best management practices, and geographic information systems/ GPS.

Leadership

It is FFA's mission to make a positive difference in the lives of students by developing their potential for premier leadership, personal growth, and career success through agriculture education.

Forestry Camp facilitates this mission throughout the week in the field, around Camp, and at Assembly. For Assembly, groups rotate each night to lead the evening program, and individuals are given the opportunity to enhance their leadership skills, team build with their peers, and fortify their commitment to the FFA organization.

Recreation

While instruction of the forestry profession is the core mission of camp, there is still plenty of time to let loose, enjoy the surroundings, socialize with new friends, and just relax. Activities include basketball, swimming, fishing, and horseshoes. There's even a horseshoe tournament. A Fall Creek Falls Park Ranger leads an interpretive hike of the park early in the week.

On Wednesday night, the faculty and counselors host a cookout and invite friends and family for a short visit. The cookout is followed by a forestry conclave where students compete in a variety of timber sports and camp games. The fun and games are then followed by a traditional bonfire and program led by the students.

Accommodations

Facilities include rustic unheated cabins with bunk beds, and three bathhouses. Girls have a separate group of cabins and bathhouse next door to the boys' groups. Meals and snacks are provided. First meal is 5:00 pm Sunday afternoon; last is lunch on Friday. Candy and soft drinks are offered for sale. Cellular phone coverage is spotty depending on carrier; a pay phone is available in the mess hall until 9:00 pm each night.
