

Extemp Topics 2025

- * With the population increasing at alarming rates, how can we ensure that there will be enough food in the future?
- * Should urban agricultural education programs be vastly different from programs found in rural areas?
- * What strategies can be implemented to expand the interaction between producers and consumers?
- * We need more young people in the United States to know where their food comes from. What is the best way to make this happen?
- * What needs to be done to ensure that transportation/distribution of agriculture products continues in a financially feasible manner?
- * What are the major issues that key decision makers in Washington, D.C., need to know about the value of modern food production?
- * What are the new trends in agricultural marketing?
- * What is the role of social media in promoting and/or sustaining food and fiber systems?
- * How would you convince a group of consumer advocates that animal care practices performed by farmers and ranchers are important and needed to produce healthy animals?
- * What agricultural education classes and curriculum should be taught to ensure graduates are prepared for careers?
- * What impacts do safety issues have on agricultural youth working on our farms and ranches?
- * How has social media influenced agricultural marketing opportunities for farmers and ranchers?
- * What are the consequences and implications of protecting American food producers from competition from foreign countries?
- * Can production agriculture in America survive without farm subsidies?
- * What technology has influenced U.S. agriculture the most?
- * How can the US agriculture industry remain a force on the global agriculture stage?
- * What can agriculturists do to educate the general public about the ethical treatment of animals in their operations?